

STAND UP JOURNAL

Dave Collins leaning into the 22,000-plus cubic feet per second, Class III Lunch Counter rapids, Snake River, Wyoming, by Greg Von Doersten

The Photography Annual

Pictures worth reading

ALA MOANA A Familiar Shadow on the Horizon, by Gerry Lopez

CRAFTSMAN Reflections & Background: The Shape of Sup, by Steve Boehne

THE WEST SIDE New Sport, New Ways to Wipeout, by Steve West

VOLUME SEVENTEEN, NUMBER FOUR

QUARTERLY $12.95

JORDAN HETRICK (Above)
Stetching it out.

SAUVAGE OCEAN (Right) Sophie Wattrelot and her husband Didier, both from France, have two kids born and raised on boats. The couple charters their 60-foot sailing yacht Sauvage Ocean on cruises to tropical waters, Pacific islands and also to cold places, most recently to Antarctica where Sophie broke out her sup board and "paddled among the icebergs, in front of glaciers and with the penguins."

GLENN DUBOCK (Bottom, right) UC Santa Barbara soccer star Genelle Ives finds coastal cruising a perfect compliment to her time on the practice field.

SWILLY (Below) Jamie Mitchell, Eastern Oz: "Shooting Jamie Mitchell (pictured) and Billy Watson [see pg. 85] on this day, made me realize what great waterman these guys are. Jamie is just insane; how fit he is. At one point he took three 10-foot set waves on the head. No life jacket, no wetsuit, just him and his boardies and board; got washed down the reef, came up with a smile on his face, then he was right back there charging more insane pits. It was one of those days I will never forget. Mother ocean at her best." —Swilly Williams

